

Hi Andrew,

Thanks for this opportunity, I really wish would be in different circumstances.
My condolences to the family and the Domain Industry, what a huge loss.

Need to mention how happy I have been to see the amount of concern and support in different phone calls, emails, all offering to help in any way and all the kind words that have been expressed on the blogs, really there is nothing more to say.

Lonnie's last name had to be mentch, a kind person concerned with others, that's what probably moved him to enlist himself in Hatzalah the emergency respond Unit for the community in Baltimore and be available for all 24/7.

My first contact with the Domain community some years ago was at Traffic in Ft. Lauderdale, I had come on the 2nd. day and Divine providence had his hand. The first person I met was Lonnie Borck, he came out of the elevator and saw me standing in the registration area and said, "somebody with a yalmaka ! (what jews place in their heads) all this years I have been the only one with a yalmaka attending the show."

Since that moment Lonnie walked me to the hall and started introducing me one by one to the attendees. Later in the night their was a cocktail and he continue sharing his friends with me, who they were, what companies they had or who they worked for, by the end of the night he maid me fill like I was in this industry for years.

The greatest thing for me about this industry has been the great friendships I have treasured over the years, doesn't matter who I call, they take my calls, they share with open hands with no limit.

All this I owe it to Lonnie my dear Brother who shared all his knowledge and open me the doors to his friends and relationships in the industry.

We would talk constantly but every Friday before Shabbat either he would call or I would call him, today Friday, Lonnie there is a huge emptiness because I can't call you, at least in the way to hear your kind and generous voice.

The way to honor Lonnie is to be like him, care for everyone and anyone, Generously, our families, the industry and the world, everyone will fill it.

For sure attending the domain conventions will never be the same.

Lonnie, Shabbat Shalom

Your brother David
